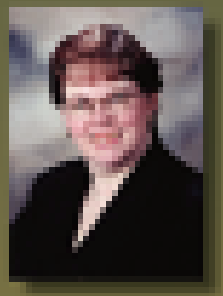
Mina Raulston expects to join most of our culture that oftentimes lies hidden beneath unspeakable and multiplied wounds of untold numbers of hurting people. Out of the depths of her own experiences and understanding, she gives hope to those who suffer in the shadows of shame. Home Should Be Safe is a relevant answer to the hopeless bondage that so many live endlessly. Mina provides relevant and powerful insights that unveil and uncover this plague of our day while providing a path to healing to those who have suffered the sting of domestic violence.

Tim Oldfield
Senior Pastor – The Path of Christ Church of God



Mina R. Raulston, originally from Springfield Ohio, began writing for publication in 1996 after God healed her from the devastating effects of divorce and domestic violence. She has published articles on domestic violence in The Cleveland Call & Post newspaper in Dayton, OH and The Evangel Magazine, Pathway Press, Cleveland, TN. Home Should Be Safe combines her personal experiences with research and interviews with domestic violence professionals to bring readers vital information to help battered domestic violence victims and those who desire to minister to them.

ISBN 978-1-6675-4337-4
$10.99

HOME SHOULD BE SAFE:

Hope and Help for DomesticViolence Victims

Mina R. Raulston