

MEETING MEDUSA

Under silky sky, silver stars,
Civilizations on the arts of walls.
Silence surrounded the bars,
A silhouette strides his stars.

Solid killer steps into snare,
Senses shared seductive stare.
Sweat sits on his, inside flare,
Stands in the heart of prayer.

Darkness embraces the entire hall,
Soul of destined killer like a doll.
Hand on his sword, sworn to fall.
Shield in his hand, sworn to call.

Snakes of evil maiden whisper tuneless,
Sense his never-ending madness.
Stone-forging eyes turn restless,
The mirror of fate reflected goddess.

Horror haunts her eyes instantly,
Wide-open eyes staring dreadfully.
Evil burns inside her chest restlessly,
Shield and the beast fall vigorously.

Sunlit silver sword, heart dauntless,
Brushes the air, air of ruthless.
Covered with blood, devil kisses,
Head of Medusa now mindless.