

Feng Shui

Feng Shui is a Chinese ancient art and science that was developed over 3,000 years ago. The word Feng means “wind” and Shui means “water.” Feng Shui reveals how to balance the energies of a house in order to get the best health and fortune for the people living in it. It is usually practiced by Feng Shui masters who spend many years studying the ancient art. The Feng Shui master will determine the proper arrangement and architectural design to bind the universe, earth, and man together in order to assure success, fortune, or a harmonious life.

Many years ago, a Chinese investor from Hong Kong bought a hotel in Waikiki. There was a restaurant on the ground floor that was quite busy. The Feng Shui master determined that the door of the restaurant facing the street was bad Feng Shui. To correct the bad Feng Shui, the front street entrance was closed and a new entrance was built inside the hotel lobby. Instead of increasing the flow of traffic into the restaurant, it decreased. Six months later, the restaurant was closed. Feng Shui did not work for this restaurant. However, there are many successful stories and this could be just one bad Feng Shui master.

Tip #17 Even though you have doubts about Feng Shui, do not disagree with your Chinese partners.

Chinese proverb: To create good auspicious Feng Shui, there has to be a balance of Yin (negative) and Yang (positive) such as hot and cold or dark and light.

ANOTHER BAD FENG SHUI MASTER

Did you know? Mirrors are used to deflect or to redirect negative energy. You may see a mirror in a Chinese home or business and usually the mirrors are placed at the windows or the doors.