

Something quivered in Kyle's memory, blinking like a distant diver's light moving in and out of a wreck. Here in this region known for vanished ships and planes, lost gold and forgotten ghosts, the flickering faraway lightning became the promise of other realms, other realities moving around the edges of awareness; portals to places unknown.

Beckoning.