

Until

The wind speaks truth,
and the rains do fall,
and the birds sing
quiet, soulful echoes
beneath a tender sky.

God makes his home
here, among fallen
branches, and gladly gathers us up, and gives us new life.

People travel, flying
or slowly walking,
illuminating sidewalks,
and lending harmony
to every blessed step.