*I know what I am seeing. Other's see what I am seeing. So why is my mind so questionable?
Its' all right here, but it's all so crazy!*

Lisa's brother Lenny left their hometown after graduation, never to return to the slower life of the Midwest. Living in Las Vegas, distance kept him from the gatherings the rest of the family was accustomed to. Yes, there were great trips to Vegas, and his trips home, but it is now evident it wasn't enough.

As he shared his photos online one day they sent random unwanted thoughts through his sister's mind. Then a sunset, and her thoughts, all signs of truth, her brother took his life. Afterwards she asked for a sign from God of eternal life for her brother, receiving flowers later that day; flowers from Heaven. It also became apparent it was only the beginning of many mystical happenings she would experience.

The mind can take control, things become overwhelming, and our sanity is questioned. Where do you go when things become so unbelievable you question your mind; when you are no longer in control of your every movement, your every thought, brought on by the continued messages and signs from your request to God?

It's a journey; an incredible journey; through death, faith, uncertainty, spirit and healing. Needing to talk to someone, but whom; wanting confirmation, is this all real? The hearts, cards, butterflies, the many numbers, and then the unknown; all of it!
