Laurie is a playful, energetic little girl who loves sports, especially soccer. Her parents, Anna and Tom, go to almost all her games. Laurie is the captain of her soccer team and her parents are very proud of her.

She's only seven years old, but she's facing the biggest battle of her life: fighting an illness. She'll have to be very brave to get through this tough time. Will she be victorious?

Laurie loves school, but she has a hard time sitting still. She's a real little ball of energy. She's often one of the first to finish her work. She has to concentrate hard on staying put in her chair.

As soon as Laurie finishes her work, Ms. Laurence, her teacher, rushes over to give her a sheet of paper to draw on to keep her busy. Otherwise, she starts to get anxious and impatient. She jiggles her legs and taps her fingers on her desk, which distracts her classmates, who aren't yet finished their work. But, Ms. Laurence has more than one trick up her sleeve to keep Laurie busy...

One morning, Laurie wakes up not feeling well. She's really tired despite getting more than ten hours of sleep.

In the past little while, her cheeks have lost their rosy glow. What's going on? Where has the little ball of energy gone?

Worried, her parents, Anna and Tom, decide to take Laurie to see their family doctor.
