

MADDEN MISCHIEF

“LOOKING AT TRUTH
THROUGH THE PRISM OF THE ABSURD”

Madden is mad. If he's not chortling over fake news, he's furious about dissension dividing America.

Madden is the modern Howard Beale, the fictional character who billed himself as “The Mad Prophet of the Airwaves.” Beal exhorted viewers to yell one of the most iconic lines in film history: “I’m as mad as hell and I’m not going to take this anymore!”

Now Madden who was irritated over the Presidential election slugfest is fuming over paralyzing post-election politics.

So dare read what the Mad Prophet of the Blogwaves yells out his Internet window about this senseless and raucous political season.

As the founder of both Judicial Watch and now Freedom Watch, both advocates for transparency and ethics in government and the legal system, I have come to know Tom Madden, the famous “Spin Man” of public relations, in the course of my many battles, some of which we have taken on together. What I admire most about Tom is not just his kind and thoughtful demeanor, but his commitment to honesty and ethics in the media. He is a true champion of the First Amendment and is not afraid to speak up about matters which he holds dear. In short, Tom is someone who I admire and deeply respect. I count him as one of my most trusted friends and you can bet that this “must read” book will win your trust as well! – LARRY KLAYMAN

‘SPIN MAN’ TOM MADDEN SPUN HIMSELF TO TOP RANKS OF NETWORK TV WHERE HIS PUBLICITY HELPED ABC AND NBC SHOWS BECOME HITS

To tell Tom Madden to stop spinning, inventing products and writing books is like telling the Federal Government to stop spending.

Madden is the quintessential “Spin Man,” the title of his engaging memoir recounting his rise from a harrowing career as a newspaper reporter for The Philadelphia Inquirer to the pinnacle of network television.

Madden was a programming whiz and VP at NBC under then CEO Fred Silverman, for whom Madden wrote speeches when they were both at American Broadcasting Companies.

Nothing short of media meteoric have been Madden’s many reincarnations from reporter, to speech writer, to the #2-ranked executive spot at NBC before launching his own public relations firm, TransMedia Group in Boca Raton, Florida.

ISBN 13: 978-1-890819-02-6
51495>

maddenmischief.com

$14.95

HUMOR/Topic/Politics

Transmedia Publishing
Boca Raton, FL

© 2017 Tom Madden

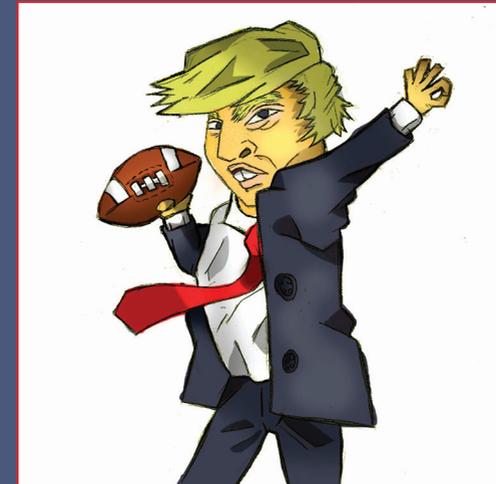

IS THERE ... ENOUGH BRADY IN TRUMP TO WIN THE INSUPERABLE BOWL?

TOM MADDEN

Transmedia Publishing

WARNING: THIS BOOK MAY CAUSE ‘READ RAGE’

IS THERE ... ENOUGH BRADY IN TRUMP TO WIN THE INSUPERABLE BOWL?

DOWN IN THE POINTS, BEHIND IN THE POLLS,
CAN OUR 45TH PRESIDENT PULL OFF A
HUUUUUUGE WIN TO FULFILL HIS PROMISE TO MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN?

TOM MADDEN

AUTHOR OF SPIN MAN AND MADDENMISCHIEF BLOGGERAUTEUR