Downtown Hana in the 1930s.

Bruce McAllister has authored ten aviation history books after a forty-year career as a freelance magazine photographer. Before he began his photography career, he was a photo trainee at LOOK Magazine in New York City, copy boy at the San Francisco Chronicle, and staff photographer for the Harvard Crimson. He spent his teenage summers in Hana photographing street life when he wasn't bodysurfing.

For more information, contact: Bruce McAllister

email: mcax@aol.com, Cell-303-579-0295

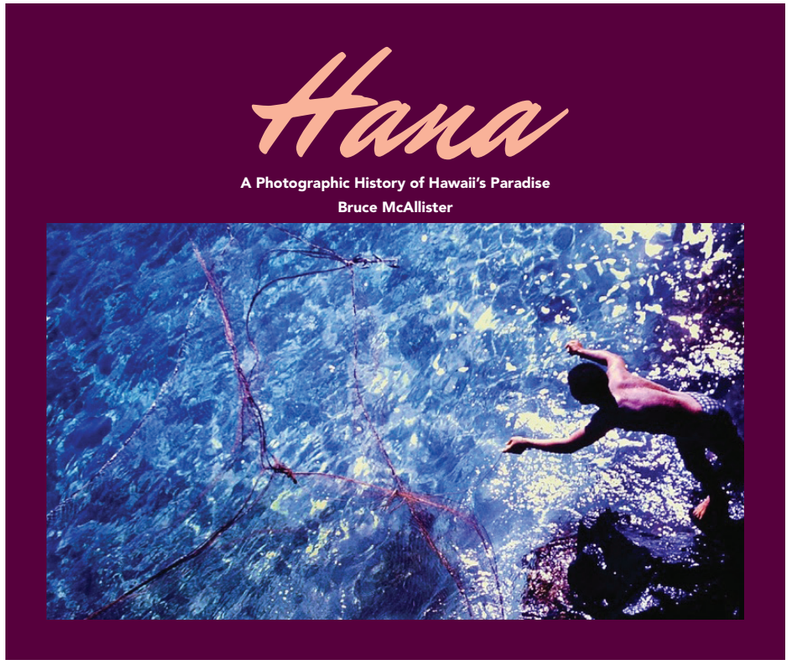
website: www.wingsalcan.com

Roudup Press
2707 Willow Creek Drive
Boulder, CO 80301

New Release

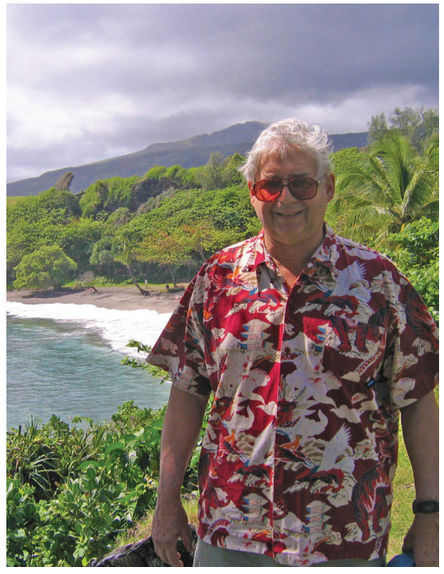
Coming October 2017

HANA: A Photographic History of Hawaii's Paradise



ISBN: 978-0-692-86620-7
Soft Cover
8" X 9.5" Oblong
232 Pages (100 B&W Photos and 132 Color Photos)
Retail Price: $40.00

Roundup Press ■ Boulder, CO & Waikapu, HI
Distributed by Bess Press, Honolulu, HI
www.besspress.com



As an aspiring teenage photographer, Bruce McAllister documented life in Hana, Hawaii's Paradise, in the 1950s, shooting Kodachrome photographs with his reliable Leica. In this book he has added historical photographs from local and multiple sources to compile this book. There are rare photographs of Paul Fagan, who turned Hana from a failing sugar mill into an exotic tourist destination. There are also chapters on the colorful Hana Highway, the 1946 Tsunami, Hana's beaches, the original Hotel Hana-Maui, Hasegawa General Store, Kaupo, Haleakala National Park, Hana's celebrities, and Charles Lindbergh's last years in Kipahulu.

(top left) 1920 Hana Scouts pose for a group photo; (top middle) Solomon Hoopai working on fishing nets; (top right) Andrew Park at Hamoa Beach in the 1950s; (bottom left) author Bruce McAllister at Hamoa Beach; (bottom right) Travaasa resort.