Santa's brief note left on the tree

Had been placed there for her to see.

This note was hers, oh yes, she knew.

But what was Chooka Chunk to do?

Some time has passed since Chooka read

That note that filled her up with dread.

For five whole days she was so good.

She helped her parents all she could.

But on day six right off the bat

She tied the poor dog to the cat.

Now things are really out of hand
Her parents have to take a stand.
'Cause Chooka Chunk, the silly dear
Is wreaking havoc and its clear
That when the Naughty List comes out
Her name will top the list, no doubt.

What havoc does she wreak, you ask?
She puts her parents to the task,
Refusing to do as she's told,
This Chooka Chunk, just six years old.
She fusses when she's put to bed
And yells at Mum and Dad instead.

If you are young and naughty too
And yelling's what you like to do
Then, don't forget that Santa knows
All that you do, so I suppose
That he SAW when cruel Chooka ate
The cookies they left on the plate;
