

CHAPTER XI- Pg 132

Instead of keeping me on trial, Paul shifted the focus away and placed it directly upon Stephen Hawking, said to be the world's foremost theoretical physicist and cosmologist. Paul told me, "It makes no sense to continue debating the atheists, they do not believe in God nor do they care much about science to support their arguments. Just the mention of God drives them crazy. Hawking is our guy! We will convince the judge that many, including the heavily credentialed Steven Hawking, vacillate on *creation, being from God or from a Godless science. We will then suggest that you have been wrongfully and maliciously pilloried for the mere suggestion that all sides might be talking about the same thing!" I'm thinking, Amen to that!
