

It has occurred to me, that the utter destruction of this planet will, in the end, be caused by Homo sapiens internal conflict between faith and reason! Not, as most people think, religion versus science, but between what we hold as true, and what others hold as true. What we hold as true, and what we can prove as true. This is the seat of all internal and external conflict: conspiracy theory, religious conquest, political aggression, misogyny, racial prejudices...etc.

To understand how conspiracy theories come into being, we must first understand nature. We must understand how our beliefs came into being... understand how knowledge came into being... understand how knowledge alters our beliefs. To do this, it is most important to look for the initiate in nature, which is something that happens in nature that starts a physical or psychological behaviour.

While I, the writer, and you, the reader, are examining conspiracy theory to be accused of falling under any of these aforementioned conflicts would be an apocalypse of humanness. It is, therefore, our supreme duty to consider what other minds hold as true.
